Unearth the shining future

Cutlery purely made by solar energy

We are each responsible for what the world will look like tomorrow. The ever-increasing consumption of electricity has pushed us towards greater use of renewables. And so, we have taken another significant step in our environmentally friendly approach and started to produce sets with the contribution of solar energy.

Green Energy

We use solar panels at our own factories to cover as much of the production as possible.

Saving Water

Through automated production we are able to save a significant part of water resources.

Simple Recycling

Everything we can, we make from recyclable materials.

Social Responsibility

With BSCI and ISO 9001 certificates, we guarantee people fair working conditions.

Blue Zones

Viva la vida

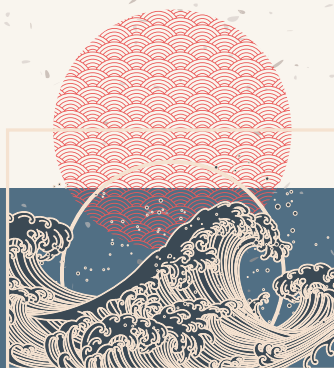

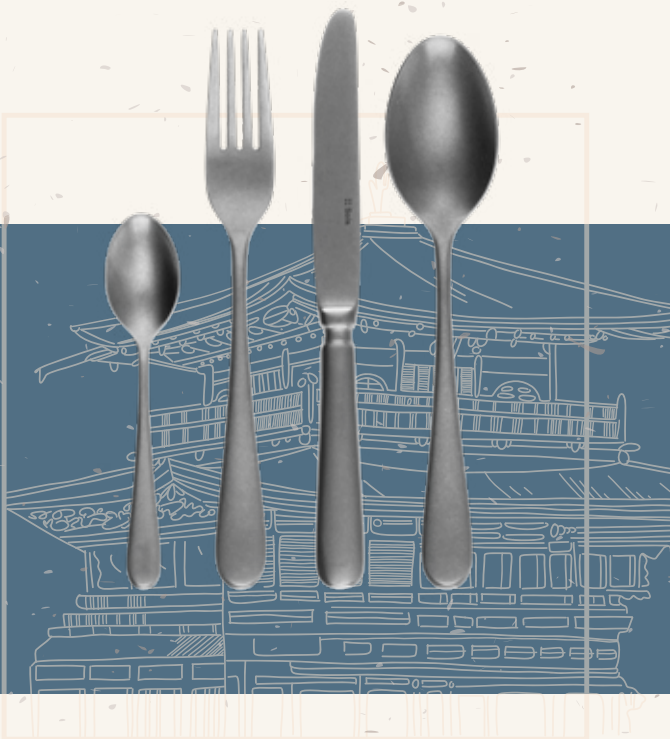

Blue Zones is a collective designation of 5 regions where people enjoy longevity. Okinawa, Sardinia, Nicoya, Icaria and Loma Linda. They owe it, among other things, to a healthy diet. And the cutlery from this series will always gladly remind you of that when you eat.

Viva la vida

SARDEGNA

In Sardegna you will meet the longest living men in the world. Their recipe is that they stay close to family and friends. They laugh often and drink goat's milk, which protects them from heart disease. The classic diet of a Sardinian consists of whole grain bread, beans, garden vegetables and fruits.

Viva la vida

OKINAWA

On Okinawa you will find the longest living women in the world. Their secret is understanding the meaning of life. They get up every morning with the conviction that they are needed in the world and must stay in it for 100 years. Okinawan women eat a plant-based diet for most of their lives, which is high in nutrients and low in calories.

Viva la vida

ICARIA

On Icaria, approximately one in three inhabitants will live up to 90 years of age. The key of the respectable age is an active lifestyle, regular siestas and a Mediterranean diet with plenty of fruit, vegetables, whole grains, beans, potatoes and olive oil.

Viva la vida

NICOYA

On the Nicoya Peninsula in Costa Rica, the "plan de vida" - the plan to spread the goodness - influences longevity. The inhabitants drink water with a high calcium content, their classic diet consists of pumpkin, corn, beans and they dine lightly.

LOMA LINDA

Residents of Loma Linda, a town in California, live 10 years longer than the U.S. average. Their recipe is quite simple. They don't smoke, don't drink alcohol, are vegetarians and exercise regularly.

BAGUETTE

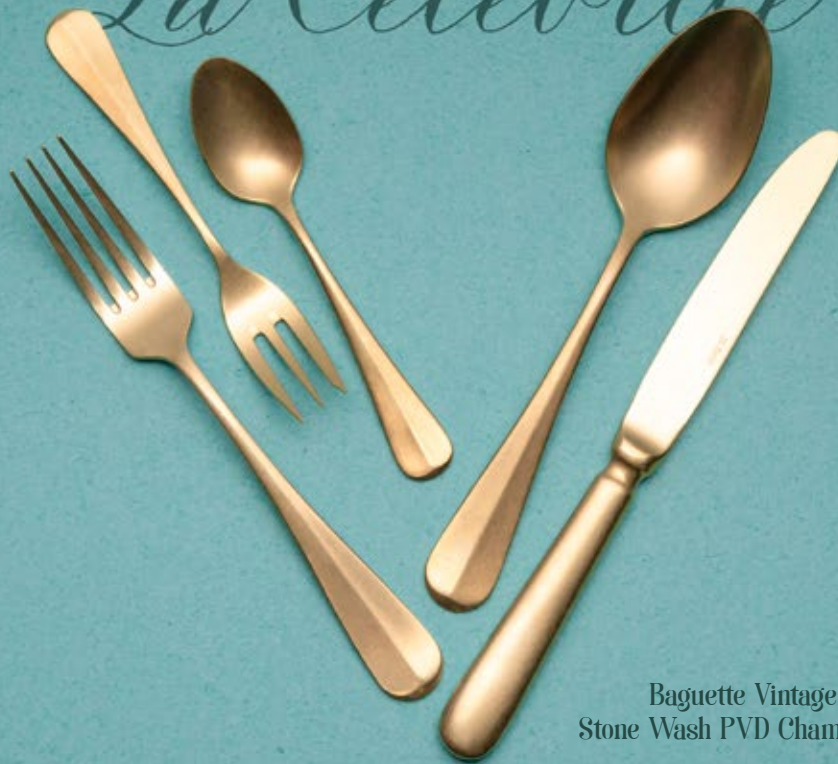

The golden era of France

Baguette is classic cutlery that made its first appearance on French soil in the middle of the 19th century. It was designed especially for the brasseries and bistros of Paris.

Easy to handle and wash, it became quickly a popular cutlery in restaurants. Thanks to PVD coating you can have the special Baguette Vintage Cutlery Set by Sola in five colours.

Hollow Handle

Hollow handle cutlery is more difficult to make than traditional monobloc cutlery. They are welded from two or three pieces that have to be perfectly processed to make the joint invisible. They have a larger diameter, so they fit better in the hand. They look massive, but are surprisingly light thanks to the hollow handles. Their high quality and pompous appearance make them perfect for festive occasions.

Shine

with silver-plated cutlery

We have been silver coating cutlery in Switzerland since 1866, since the founding of our family company Sola. You can rely on our quality thanks to our extensive experience and thorough technological process.

The precious finish has an inimitable shine.
So, what's more to dazzle with on the table?
